

A Gentle Late-Summer HOME RESET

A few simple things to do now to help home feel ready for the season ahead.

This isn't about getting ahead of the season. It's simply about giving home a little care after a summer of open doors, busy days and life lived inside and out.

Let the Summer Air Through

- ☐ Open windows and air bedrooms
- ☐ Shake out cushions and throws
- ☐ Air duvets and pillows if the weather allows
- ☐ Wash or freshen lightweight blankets
- ☐ Give frequently opened windows and doors a wipe

Give Home a Little Refresh

- ☐ Catch the cobwebs that appeared over summer
- ☐ Dust forgotten corners and surfaces
- ☐ Vacuum underneath the places you usually miss
- ☐ Mop or properly clean busy floors
- ☐ Wipe skirting boards in one or two rooms
- ☐ Choose one cupboard or drawer to reset

Gather Up Summer

- ☐ Wash outdoor throws and cushions before storing
- ☐ Gather picnic bags, beach things and summer gear
- ☐ Check what needs washing, repairing or replacing
- ☐ Put away anything you know you won't use again
- ☐ Use up summer toiletries, candles or pantry bits
- ☐ Leave the things you're still enjoying exactly where they are

Make a Little Space for What Comes Next

- ☐ Clear the everyday drop zone
- ☐ Check bags, lunch boxes and water bottles
- ☐ Find a home for incoming school/work papers
- ☐ Restock one or two everyday essentials
- ☐ Think about what would make September mornings easier
- ☐ Choose one thing you can prepare now

A Little Note
to My September Self

One thing I want home to feel like: _____

One thing I can do now that will make life easier: _____

One summer thing I'm absolutely not ready to put away yet: _____

*There is still summer left.
Prepare gently.
Enjoy what remains.*
